Eight is Enough dad's SURPRISING SECRET

EIGHT IS ENOUGH star Dick Van Patten's career spanned decades – but even with his great success in Hollywood, he regretted becoming an actor! That's the shocking secret the beloved 86-year-old TV dad took to the grave after dying of complications from diabetes on June 23. "Dick was pushed into the theater when he was just a small boy – so he really had no say in the matter," a source tells GLOBE.

"But he always hated that he didn't have a normal childhood like other kids and he always carried great guilt at how his success destroyed his own family!"

"He always wondered if it would have been better had he never become an actor."

Van Patten's ambitious stage mother, Jo, took him to his first photo shoot for a New York modeling agency when he was just three.

She was determined to make him – and his younger sister, Joyce – into Broadway stars. Jo let nothing stand in the way of making her dream a reality, even if it meant ruining her family.

In his autobiography, Eighty Is Not Enough, Van Patten confessed his mother was driven by →

Grace Under Fire star hit rock bottom while BATTLING ADDICTION

DISGRACED Brett Butler got booted from her sitcom, Grace Under Fire, for drug troubles and shocking diva behavior, but now she's cleaned up her act and has come back as a psychic!

The 57-year-old funnygal, who earned $100,000 an episode for five years on the hit ABC sitcom until her 1998 axing, now charges $150 an hour for a "spiritual consultation" by phone.

For a limited time, she's offering a special discount – $50 for a 30 minute session via her realbrettbutler.com Web site. She also does stand-up performances with psychic readings.

And she insists her eerie powers are legit!

"It's what they call claircognizance, where I can be around people and information just sort of appears," she says.

Drug-troubled terror

"Most people are psychic. Everyone has degrees of it. I just found out there were things I knew, that I would have had no other way of knowing."

Back in the '90s, the drug-troubled terror earned a reputation as one of the worst people to work with in television.

Sources say she shamefully flashed her breasts at Jon Paul Steuer, the 12-year-old who played her son Quentin on her sitcom. He abruptly quit before the final season began.

She also got a rep for outrageous diva antics. She once demanded a private chartered jet rather than fly with the rest of her cast.

After Drew Carey's crew worked with her for a 1997 episode of his sitcom, his cast was given "I Survived Brett" T-shirts by the show's producers.

She lost her stardom after spiraling into a nightmare of drug abuse, depression, weight gain and poverty.

"I almost died like Michael Jackson. I was dying of addiction," she reveals. "I did everything but crack and needles pretty much.

"I lost my husband, my job and the respect of people I admire greatly, everything. The closeness that I came to dying was really remarkable."

Butler hit rock bottom so hard she found herself in a homeless shelter.

But after spells in drug rehab, she's fought back. She had a small role as a bartender on Charlie Sheen's FX sitcom Anger Management and on the soap The Young and the Restless in 2012.

And she's hoping her former Grace Under Fire co-workers don't bear grudges. "I hope I'm forgiven," she says.

“unrelenting ambition...She felt it every minute of the day. She could never settle for not trying.”

Her ruthlessness destroyed her relationship with Dick’s grandmother, Florence Van Patten.

Inheriting some money from a sister in 1935, Florence decided to take a trip to California. Jo insisted 6-year-old Dick accompany his granny so he could make connections with Hollywood studios.

‘Infuriated’

The grandmother and the boy tried to see Stan Laurel at MGM, but were turned away. They were also rebuffed at other studios.

Jo was “infuriated” at Florence for her “timidity, indifference, and even incompetence.” She accused her mother-in-law of not being determined enough and failing to promote Dick’s career.

“The result was a profound rift,” Van Patten wrote. “It lasted the rest of their lives. They never spoke again.”

Van Patten also had to endure cruel “ribbing” from the kids in his tough New York neighborhood who taunted him for being a “sissy” because he took modeling jobs.

“That was horrible,” he remembered. “Kids can certainly be cruel.”

From age 7, Van Patten starred in numerous New York stage plays, including 1939’s The American Way with Frederic March and Thornton Wilder’s The Skin of Our Teeth in 1942.

Meanwhile, Dick’s father, Richard Sr., felt abandoned as his wife poured all her time and energy into showbiz. As a result, he plunged into an affair with a younger woman he’d met while selling furniture at Flint & Horner in Manhattan.

One day, the mother of his mistress turned up at the Van Pattens’ door. Jo confronted Dick’s father, who admitted cheating.

“A few days later, he moved out,” devastated Van Patten recalled. “I just wanted him to come back. But he wouldn’t.”

Instead, his father enlisted in the Marines “to get away from it all,” Dick said.

Their father’s departure triggered tremendous resentment in his little sis, Joyce, against “my mother’s obsession with the entertainment world,” wrote Van Patten.

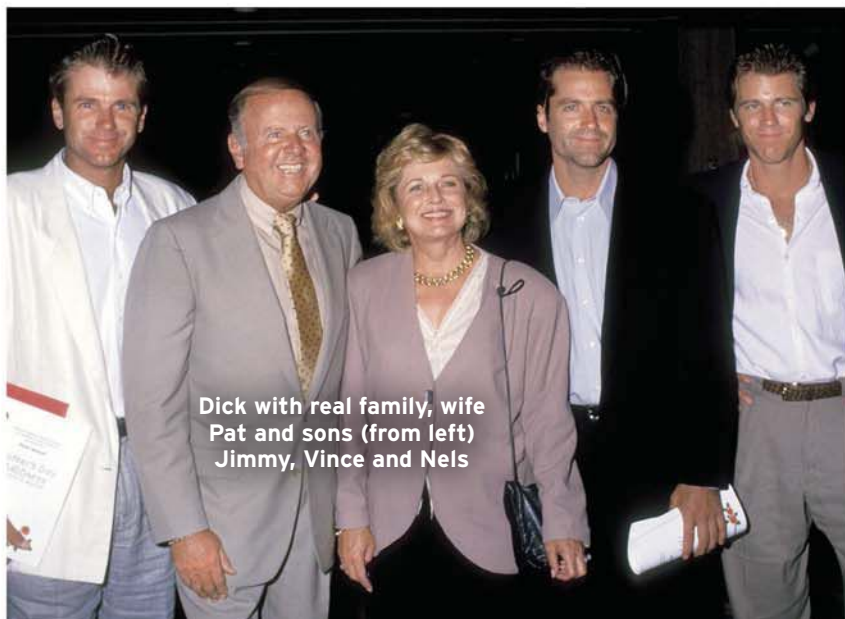

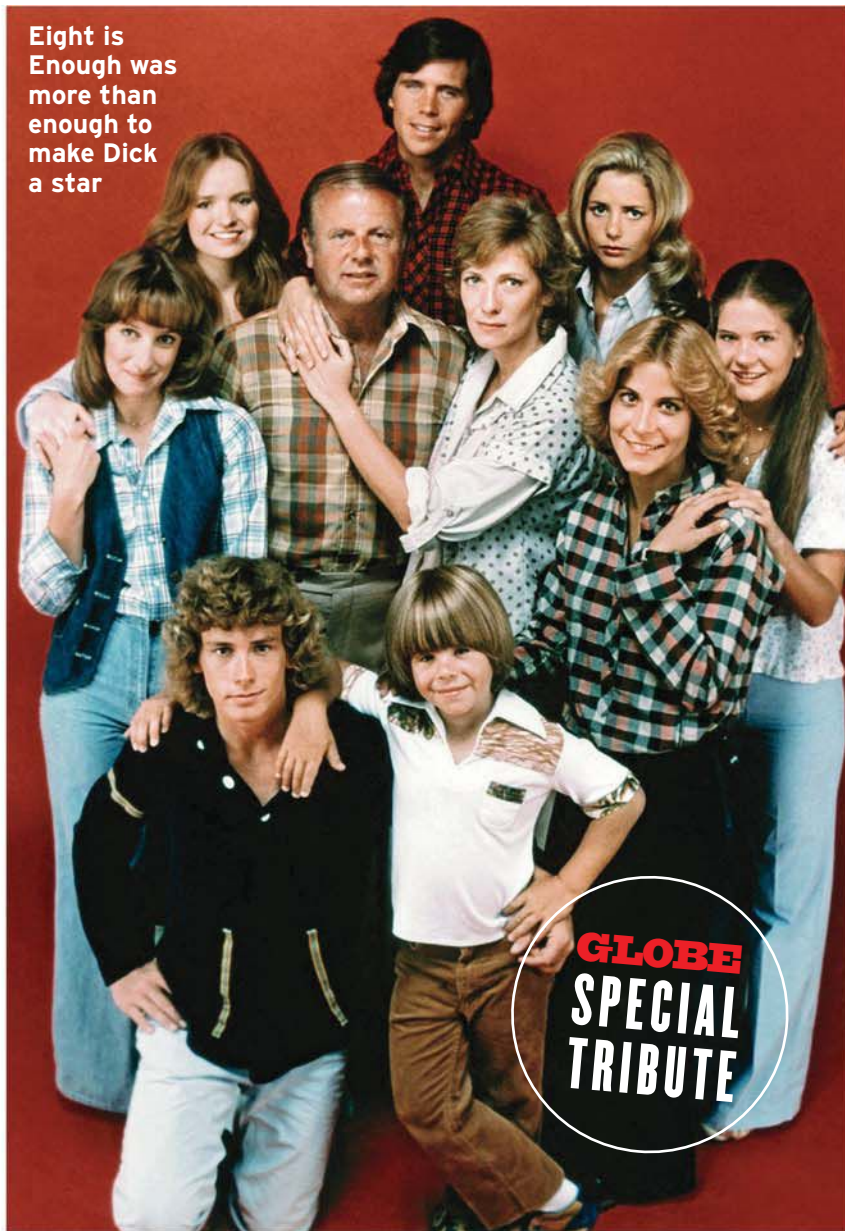

“Joyce also felt we were measured too much by our success. If we were working, we were treated one way, if we didn’t get a job, it was something different.”

“Joyce rebelled” by eloping at age 16 with an older man, Tom King, who later became an ABC executive. The marriage was brief and Joyce, now 81, wed and divorced three more times.

Meanwhile, Van Patten had no choice but to continue acting. He began landing guest stints on TV shows like Rawhide, Naked City, I Dream of Jeannie, and The Streets of San Francisco. But he didn’t hit pay dirt until 1977 – at age 49 – when he landed the breakthrough role as widower Tom Bradford on Eight Is Enough.

He became a star and amassed a $30 million fortune. After “Eight” ended in 1981, he played roles on The Love Boat, Growing Pains, and WIOU.

His rough life as a child actor led Van Patten to help Adam Rich, who played his son, Nicholas, on “Eight,” when the youth spiraled into booze and cocaine issues and couldn’t find new work.

At 22, Rich was arrested for breaking a pharmacy window to steal drugs. Dick bailed him out – and “tried to talk some sense into him.”

“I think Dick convinced him that he couldn’t cope with the pressures of fame and Hollywood,” says the source. “Rich hasn’t continued his acting career, and that advice from Dick may have saved his life.”

Meanwhile, Van Patten, who reconciled with his parents in later years, made his own family a priority. He and wife Pat, parents of sons Nels, 60, Jimmy, 58, and Vincent, 57, were married for 61 years.

And his family was by his side as he bravely battled for life.

Van Patten, who frequently wore hats and bandages on his head after battles with skin cancer, took a turn for the worse in May and spent nearly a month in the hospital. Earlier in his life, he’d waged a long battle with heart problems “that made him appreciate the time he had with his family even more,” the source says.

“He saw his parents’ marriage fall apart under the pressures of show business – and he swore early on that he would never let that happen to him and Pat.

“He also vowed to never push his children into a career. His sad last wish was that his mother had allowed him the same freedom.

“His life could have been so very different if she had.”

FED-UP KATE

PRINCE WILLIAM's beautiful wife Kate erupted in an unprecedented display of fury after her evil stepmother Camilla insulted her precious babies, Prince George and Princess Charlotte!

"Kate just snapped!" says an insider. "She was like a mother lion defending her cubs."

"She told Camilla it was bad enough that she'd been spreading malicious lies about her for years, but the children were off limits."

"Keep my children out of it!" she yelled."

The royal ruckus came after Camilla was heard trashing George, who turns two this month, as a "spoiled brat."

Then she predicted 2-month-old Charlotte will end up the same way because Kate is raising them as "commoners."

Seething with jealousy

Camilla's outrageous outburst deliberately targeted Kate and William as they prepared for Charlotte's July 5 christening. It was her evil revenge for being banned from visiting the children, say insiders.

Prince Charles' scheming second spouse has been telling cronies the Duchess of Cambridge, 33, is parading George "like a prop" for photo sessions at polo matches and petting zoos so she can gain more favor with the Queen.

Seething with jealousy, Camilla, 67, insists Kate is trying to convince the 89-year-old Monarch her decision to hand the Throne to William – and bypass his father Prince Charles – was the right thing to do. But Palace sources reveal that when Camilla's latest smears reached Kate at Anmer Hall, the new family mansion on the royal estate at Sandringham, she exploded in fury.

While William, 33, was away piloting a helicopter for the local Air Ambulance Service, Kate called Camilla on her cell phone and laid into her during a 10-minute showdown.

"How dare you insult my babies and me with those terrible lies," she blasted.

"I do not know what you're talking about!" Camilla sheepishly answered.

Then she angrily fired back, "Don't blame me! You're making the Royal Family a laughingstock.

"You arrange so many photo opportunities with George, you should be doing your own reality show!

"You could become like those awful Kardashians...and have a show called Keeping Up with the Waleses."

The wicked woman then took an ugly shot at William's late mother, beloved Princess Diana.

"She told Kate she was making a big mistake following Diana's approach to parenting, saying those methods did nothing for Prince Harry, who at 30 is still a wild child!," says an insider.

"She said royal children need to be raised following strict rules including no public displays of joy for the camera, no tantrums."

But Kate hung up, cutting Camilla off in mid-sentence.

Kate vowed to William, "I will never again be intimidated by that woman. She must stay out of our lives."

Embarrassing Palace secrets

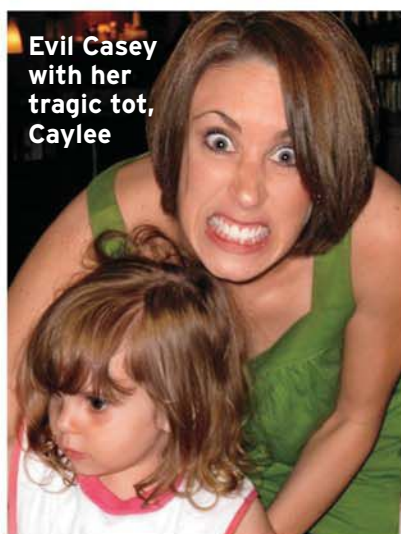

As GLOBE previously reported, William and Kate banned Camilla from seeing George and Charlotte after she was caught red-handed cheating on Prince Charles with a toyboy actor who is 12 years younger – and later was discovered to be hooking up with a SECOND guy.

In our June 22 issue, we detailed the explosive showdown between Camilla and her estranged husband. Now, Camilla is threatening to spill embarrassing Palace secrets unless she gets a $400 million divorce settlement. And she remains a thorn in the side of Kate until she officially leaves the Royal Family.

But Camilla's latest smear on Kate's babies may finally do her in.

"Once the Queen hears of this attack on Kate and her babies, she's likely to tell Charles to divorce Camilla and kick her out of the royal circle for good," notes an insider.

Evil Casey with her tragic tot, Caylee

MONSTER MOM CASEY:

HERE COMES THE BRIDE!

SHE PLANS WEDDING AND ANOTHER BABY 4 YEARS AFTER BEATING CAYLEE MURDER RAP

MONSTER MOM Casey Anthony has emerged from hiding to seek a big bucks TV deal – and reveal she’s planning to marry and have another baby!

For four years, America’s most hated woman was afraid to show her smug face after being improbably acquitted by a Florida jury of murdering her precious 2-year-old daughter, Caylee.

But sources tell GLOBE the brunette vixen recently turned up in New York with a Florida-based producer in tow. She spent several days in top-secret meetings with NBC execs trying to hammer out a deal for an exclusive TV interview.

“Casey said she’s turned her life around and that she’s in love and planning to marry,” a source tells GLOBE.

Anthony, 29, refused to name her beau but claimed he’s the son of a Florida businessman whom she met in 2008 while she was being investigated for Caylee’s disappearance and death.

“She told the network execs they have now decided to marry and that she’s already trying on wedding dresses,” says the source. “You could have knocked them over with a feather. That was the last thing they were expecting to hear.”

What’s more, Anthony also announced she’s planning to have another baby!

“Casey still holds tight to her story that she didn’t kill Caylee,” says the source. “But she admits she was an unrepentant party girl during her first time as a mother and didn’t know what she was doing.”

Despite the shocking revelations, Anthony left the Big Apple empty-handed. Apparently, she’s still too toxic for NBC and other networks, which fear a “backlash” should they feature her on a news program.

“Casey tried to cash in on book and TV deals shortly after her trial, but no one would touch her with a 10-foot pole,” notes the source. “It seems her hope now is that people have short memories and may want to finally hear her story from her own lips.”

Web of lies

The evil mom never even reported her adorable daughter missing! Then she spun a web of lies after her own mother, Cindy, finally alerted cops the tot was nowhere to be found. Caylee’s body turned up FIVE MONTHS after her June 2008 disappearance, tossed out like trash in the woods near the

OUT AND ABOUT AGAIN

America's Most Hated Woman was recently caught on camera near her West Palm Beach, Fla., home

Orlando-area home of Casey's parents.

After being acquitted at her sensational trial, Anthony wound up in serious debt. In 2013, she filed for bankruptcy, claiming to owe about $800,000, including almost $400,000 to her defense attorney, Jose Baez. Early last year, most of her debts were forgiven by the bankruptcy court, but sources say she's been struggling to earn a living.

"Casey has access to money through her well-heeled boyfriend, but she still believes her story is worth something and she wants to show she can earn some money herself," explains the source. "Unfortunately for her, there's a large segment of the public who still loathe her."

Anthony was spotted twice near her West Palm Beach, Fla., home in May. She's taken up jogging "to get in shape for the wedding," says the source. Her venture to New York is a "strong signal" she's finally ready to emerge from the shadows for good.

"Casey is convinced she has a great story to tell about these four years where she's been practically a ghost," says the source. "She's ready to sell that story but hasn't found a buyer. I don't even think she realizes how much people continue to hate her."

Still, the wedding plans are apparently moving forward. And she's hoping her lawyer, Cheney Mason, will give her away since she's estranged from her dad, George Anthony. Outrageously, she's planning to wear white.

"Casey is shameless and couldn't care less that people will slam her and call her arrogant," says the source. "She's never been married before and she's determined to get what she wants – and that is a white wedding. She's looking at a small beach ceremony with only a few trusted friends on hand. Casey wants a new beginning with a husband and a baby. Of course, it could all be a pie in the sky. She does have a history of lying."

DONALD TRUMP running for President in 2016 is Hillary Clinton's worst nightmare, political insiders reveal.

"Hillary believes Trump is the ONE person who can beat her," says a political analyst. "She's confident she can take down any of the other Republican candidates, but she exploded in rage and became hysterical when Trump announced his candidacy. This is her worst nightmare come true."

Billionaire Trump, 69, created a stir when he jumped into the crowded GOP presidential field before a large, cheering crowd. The mogul galvanized supporters who believe he's the only candidate who can fix the economy, defeat the Islamic State (ISIS) and other terrorists, and make America great again.

"Trump has limitless funds, a proven record in business and incredible contacts both here and around the globe," says a political insider. "He can generate enough support to bury Hillary – and she knows it."

Fired back

But the former Secretary of State, 67, is a tough cookie. Sources say she's already plotting to discredit Trump by claiming he lacks political experience. Oddly, she even blamed him for the tragic June 17 massacre in a Charleston, S.C., church.

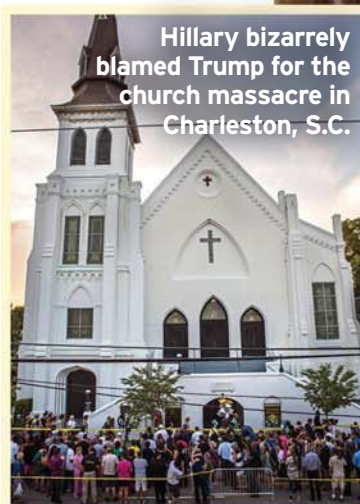

After Trump said he'd fight illegal immigration by building a huge wall between the U.S. and Mexico to keep out criminals, drug-gies and rapists, Hillary charged that such talk can "trigger someone who is less than stable."

Trump immediately fired back, calling Hillary "pathetic" in blaming him for "the horrendous attack in the Carolinas."

Meanwhile, Trump has gone on the offensive about HER performance in government. Plus, he has played up Hillary's medical issues. The former First Lady is said to be terrified his focus on her health will force her to release her medical records.

"That's the last thing Hillary wants to do," says the insider, noting that she's been accused of covering up the truth about her health.

TRUMP WORST

Hillary bizarrely blamed Trump for the church massacre in Charleston, S.C.

While she claimed she suffered a blood clot near her brain in 2012, GLOBE recently revealed Hillary really suffered a stroke – her second – and was hiding it from the public.

We also revealed she secretly underwent alcohol detox before announcing her campaign for President.

"Make no mistake, Hillary is going to fight Trump," says the source. "She's already firing up support from her Hollywood pals like Barbra Streisand, Ted Danson, Jack Nicholson, Ellen

IS HILLARY'S NIGHTMARE!

Trump's entry into the Presidential race has Clinton running scared

Clinton believes he's only person who CAN DERAIL HER WHITE HOUSE DREAM

FAMOUS FRIENDS

Hillary and Bill are enlisting the help of supporters like Barbra Streisand and (from left) Ted Danson, Ellen DeGeneres, Robert De Niro and Jack Nicholson to stop Trump, insiders say DeGeneres and Robert De Niro.

"She's ruthless and determined – but deep down she's scared to death of 'The Donald.'"

"She knows that if she's forced to go one-on-one with him, Trump will destroy her."

Donald & Oprah: POWERFUL DREAM TEAM!

DONALD TRUMP's White House bid got a huge boost when The Celebrity Apprentice star proclaimed he'd like to tap Oprah Winfrey as his vice presidential running mate!

"She's great, she's talented, she's a friend of mine," says The Donald. "I think we'd win easily."

And the possibility has thrilled supporters who believe the two TV titans would be a Dream Team that could make America great again.

"President Trump and Vice President Winfrey – I would vote YES!" declared an Internet poster.

But the idea also sparked a backlash from Trump's Hollywood enemies. They include his bitter adversary Rosie O'Donnell and outspoken diva Cher.

In fact, the Turn Back Time singer fired off her first salvo via social media, calling Trump a "bigot" and ridiculing his hairstyle.

But countless ordinary voters aren't deterred by celebrity rants. And one political insider tells GLOBE a Trump-Winfrey ticket may be exactly what the doctor ordered to cure our nation's many ills.

"They're both strong leaders who don't take 'no' for an answer," says the Washington source. "Together they'd be a Dream Team!"

TAXMAN'S ROBBING BEE GEE'S RELATIVES

BEE GEES music legend Robin Gibb left about $40 million for his relatives when he died in May 2012 - but they've yet to see a dime of their inheritance!

That's because Gibb's fortune is in legal limbo due to a "nasty" dispute between his survivors and taxmen from the U.S. and Britain.

"Robin's estate and all of his assets are frozen," explains an insider. "He was a very wealthy man and wanted to make sure his family were all properly provided for but, sadly, that hasn't happened yet."

Meanwhile, his widow, Dwina, 62, is said to be Stayin' Alive with the help of relatives. And his children, Spencer, 42, Melissa, 41, and Robin-John, 32, are also waiting for their cut.

Says the source, "It's a real strain for everyone involved."

SENIOR citizen Merrill Kimball will spend the rest of his life behind bars for gunning down Leon Kelley in a bizarre dispute over a honeybee farm.

A judge in Portland, Maine, reluctantly clobbered the 72-year-old shooter with a 25-year sentence after Kimball was convicted of murder. Ironically, Kimball had turned down a plea bargain that would have gotten him a lighter sentence.

Amazingly, Justice Ronald Cole apologized for the June 5 mandatory sentence that will probably condemn Kimball to die behind bars.

"My hands are tied," Cole declared. "The legislature has set the sentence, a minimum mandatory sentence that can be imposed for murder."

"I don't think it's a fair situation. This is not the usual history for someone who is charged with murder."

The 5-foot-11, 170-pound Kimball had claimed self-defense for pumping three slugs into 6-foot-4, 285-pound Kelley during a fierce argument.

But the prosecutor called Kimball's decision to shoot Kelley, 63, "a rash and impulsive act by an angry and foolish man."

Tensions exploded

The tragedy was triggered by a feud between the men's families after Stan Brown, the owner of the North Yarmouth bee farm, changed his will.

Instead of leaving the lucrative Brown's Bee Farm to family members including his daughter, Kathleen, 68, who was Kelley's wife, he bequeathed the business to Kimball's spouse, Karen, 60, who'd been managing the operation in recent years.

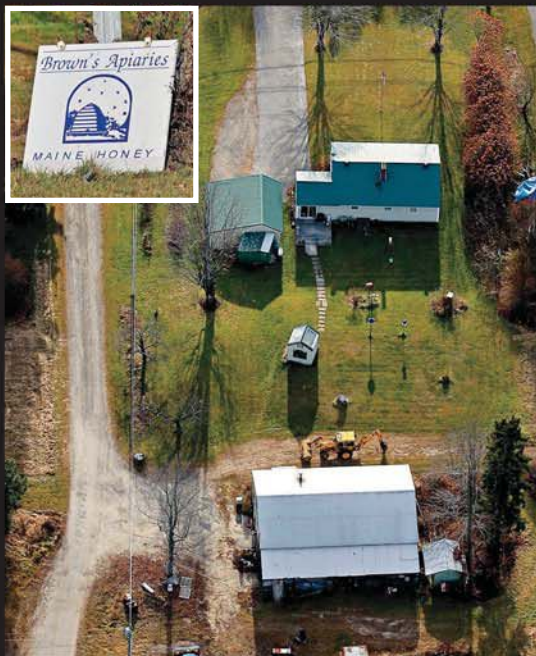

Kathleen was convinced her 90-plus-year-old dad was mentally confused and taken advantage of by Karen, who began working at the farm in 2009.

The tensions exploded in a murderous clash on Oct. 6, 2013, when Kimball, Karen and her son, Damon Carroll, 35, arrived at the farm to pick up two dozen 50-pound jars of honey valued at $5,000.

On a tape played at trial, Kathleen called the 911 dispatcher and asked for officers to come to the farm to quiet things down. Suddenly, three gunshots ring out and she frantically screams: "Oh my God, he just shot my husband."

According to evidence, hulking Kelley began shoving Kimball down the 35-foot drive of the bee farm.

As Kimball got to the edge of the woods, he drew a .380-caliber Ruger pistol and blasted away.

Later, Kimball, who had a concealed permit for the weapon, reportedly blurted out, "What was I supposed to do? He came at me. I'm 70 years old."

At one point, Kathleen is heard blasting Karen as a "liar" and a "thief."

Paramedics raced to the scene, but Kelley died in an ambulance on the way to a hospital.

While prosecutors admitted Kelley was the aggressor in the fight, they noted Kimball had been drinking and questioned whether the booze caused him to "overreact."

Kimball's lawyers claimed in court that the shooting was in self-defense.

But Kathleen testified she feared for her life, too, after she saw her husband shot dead.

"My thoughts always start with seeing Merrill Kimball holding the pistol and wondering who he was going to shoot next," she said.

Meanwhile, her dad, Stan Brown, died in May at age 95.

Bee Farm owner Stan Brown's will triggered the deadly feud

Days earlier, Kathleen filed a wrongful death suit against Kimball seeking $1 million from his assets including his house in Yarmouth.

While the judge believes the mandatory sentence was too harsh on Kimball, prosecutor John Alsop praised it, saying, "He will spend the rest of his life in jail, and we believe justice was done."

JUSTICE FOR AMY!

Savage murderer LOCKED AWAY FOR LIFE

THE heartless creep who ruthlessly kidnapped and killed former cheerleader Amy Lord will rot in jail!

Edwin Alemany, 30, has been handed a life sentence – without parole – for the crime that shocked Boston in July 2013.

Spree of terror

“There will never be closure,” says Amy’s still grieving mom Cindy Lord. “There will always be overwhelming pain caused by senseless violence.”

Alemany plucked the pretty media analyst, who had captained her school cheerleading squad, off the street from outside her South Boston apartment. He then forced the 24-year-old brunette to withdraw cash from several ATMs before coldheartedly stabbing her to death in a park.

The creep had been on a 20-hour spree of terror. He’d attacked at least three other women, who luckily escaped. Prosecutor John Pappas describes the rampage as “a real-life horror story.”

Viciously assaulted

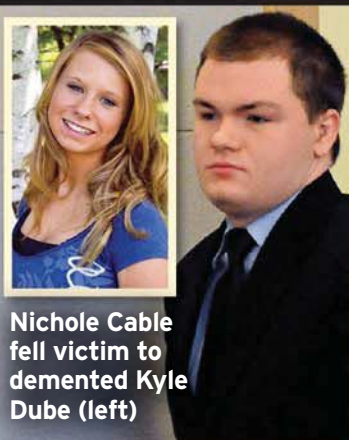

Tragically, Alemany, who was sentenced in June, should have already been behind bars. As GLOBE previously reported, a woman he viciously assaulted in 2012 managed to snatch his wallet and give it to cops, but the lawmen didn’t take action.

In January, Jerome Hall-Brewster’s demotion from detective to patrol officer – for failing to arrest Alemany in the 2012 case – was upheld by a state agency.

His plan was to return later without a disguise to rescue and bed her as her hero.

The sick scheme backfired when he choked her to death. Her body was found eight days later in the woods.

The day before her kidnapping Nichole texted her boyfriend that “Kyle was trying to kiss and grope me. I kept trying to push him off me and he...wouldn’t stop and he ended up leaving a (bite) mark.”

FAMILY SEX SCANDAL IS KILLING BILLY GRAHAM!

Televangelist, 96, SHATTERED as preacher grandson quits church AFTER CONFESSING AFFAIR

AS he nears his 97th birthday, televangelist Rev. Billy Graham has been devastated by a sex scandal that threatens to rip his family apart and has friends fearing for his life.

Often hailed as the most admired man in America, the frail religious leader was “horrificed” when he learned his favorite grandson, Tullian Tchividjian, had been forced to resign as pastor of a Florida-based megachurch after having an affair.

The furor has “just torn at the heart of Billy and weakened him even further,” says a friend. “We fear the scandal is killing him.”

Adds a pal, “To see a cheating scandal invade his own home at the hands of

Pastor Tullian Tchividjian - the son of Billy's daughter, Gigi (inset) - admitted cheating after saying he'd learned his wife Kim (above) had an affair. Tchividjian agreed to resign his post from Florida's majestic, 2,000-member Coral Ridge Presbyterian Church (left)

Tullian is heartbreaking for him.

“He’s long seen his grandson as his spiritual heir.”

Graham’s grandson, 42, admitted to leaders at Coral Ridge Presbyterian in Fort Lauderdale that he plunged into an affair after learning his wife, Kim, had allegedly cheated on him.

He issued a written statement on June 21, declaring, “As many of you know, I returned from a trip a few months back and discovered that my wife was having an affair.

“As her affair continued, we separated. Sadly and embarrassingly, I subsequently sought comfort in a friend and developed an inappropriate relationship myself.”

When church leaders confronted him about his sexual antics, he says, “I admitted to it and it was decided that the best course of action would be for me to resign.”

His wife, Kim, says his statement

DEVASTATED

Fast-fading Rev. Billy Graham was heartbroken. He felt Tchividjian was a rising star in the religious world nightmare of drugs and booze and even stole from employers to fuel his wild lifestyle. But his life turned around after meeting waitress Kim when he was 21.

They focused their life on religion and Tullian reconciled with his family. The pair married in 1994. The former high school dropout enrolled in evangelical college and began to follow in his famous grandfather's footsteps.

Although Graham's son, Franklin, became the most powerful preaching force in the family following Billy's 2007 retirement, Tullian, who has authored eight books and is a religion professor, "was really seen as the rising star by Billy," says the friend.

'Billy deserves better in what are the last months of his life'

Now, friends fear the ailing Graham won't be able to bounce back from the blow of Tullian's disgrace.

A recluse at his home in Montreat, N.C., the beloved preacher suffers from Parkinson's disease, has largely lost his vision and hearing, is mostly wheelchair-bound and must use oxygen.

He has battled prostate cancer, suffered fractures of his foot and pelvis and had a partial hip replacement surgery. He has also had several lengthy stays in hospital fighting life-threatening pneumonia.

But son Franklin says "his mind is still clear."

The friend also notes Graham is still heartbroken over the 2007 death of Ruth, his wife of 67 years.

And now Tullian's scandal may be too much to bear.

"Billy deserves better in what are the last months of his life," says the friend.

"He's devastated. We fear his family being locked in a scandal like this is going to hasten his demise."

Billy sorely misses his late wife, Ruth reflected "my husband's opinions but not my own."

A friend says Graham urged his grandson to fight to save his marriage in the days leading to his resignation from the 2,000 member church.

"Billy begged Tullian to put his family back together. Tullian has three children," the friend says. "He said, that over time, Tullian can rise from the ashes of this moral failing."

Troubled teen

"But he needs his family to do that."

"Sadly, Tullian told his grandfather he didn't see any way to save his marriage. That hurt Billy worse than having to see his grandson resign from his church in disgrace.

"Family is everything to him."

Tullian is one of the seven children of Graham's oldest daughter, Gigi, and her psychologist husband, Dr. Stephen Tchividjian.

THE only thing bigger than Kim Kardashian's butt and her boobs is her ego! Take a look at the photo of No-Talent Kim on this page. Here she is rushing to make a plane at Los Angeles airport.

She evidently thought wearing a trench coat and big sunglasses would hide her questionable celebrityhood. Yeah, like Kim Kardashian doesn't want to get noticed. Wake up Kim, most people over 18 with a mind of their own don't give a damn anymore.

But I'm guessing her gigantic ego got the better of her. Just in case people really couldn't recognize her, she left two big things almost completely unhidden to draw some attention. She might as well have painted 'LOOK AT ME' across both of them.

Quite frankly, I question why she didn't decorate them with Christmas lights just to make sure everyone noticed. I guess the only thing really surprising is she got through airport security. If you ask me...they look like weapons.

Really, no normal person is going to walk through an airport dressed like this. In some cities, they would probably arrest you for indecent exposure.

This act of KK's is getting very old already. Kim and her crazy Kardashians' insatiable appetite for publicity whoring is just plain creepy - and I'm not even talking about her sex-swap stepdad Caitlyn Jenner.

But there is a lesson in all this. Kim, 34, has gone out of her way to prove Newton's law of gravity. But take it from me Kim, it ain't pretty.

My strong advice to her is: Cover up, shut up, and get on the first plane to Bora Bora. And, oh yeah, don't come back.

AND ONE MORE THING...I'm willing to turn this column over SHOCKING new photos of Alan Alda have sparked fears the M*A*S*H legend is facing his last days after terrifying battles with mental illness and deadly medical problems.

Sources who have seen the tragic 79-year-old star were shocked by his haggard appearance.

"I didn't realize it was Alan at first. It's so sad," says a source. "Time is taking a heavy toll on him."

Now friends are urging Alda to update his 2005 memoir – and tell his entire story – before he takes his final curtain call.

"He's finally ready to talk about so much more that happened in his life that he has kept buried," says a source.

Terrifying violence

"He has battled mental illness, paranoia and struggled with fame. He wants to tell how he has managed to come to grips with all the heartache and anger that has tormented him all his life."

Alda, who has two movies out this year – The Longest Ride in April, and Bridge of Spies in October – has been haunted by mental illness throughout life.

As a child, he had to survive terrifying violence from his beauty queen mother Joan, a former Miss New York, who was plagued with murderous hallucinations triggered by her paranoid schizophrenia.

"She thought people were trying to kill her. She thought Alan was trying to kill her," says the source. "In order to survive, he had to watch her very carefully."

At age six, he watched in horror as his mother try to stab his singer-actor dad Robert in a jealous rage.

"Joan suffered from furious fits of jealousy because his father worked with beautiful burlesque dancers," says the source. "Alan cowered in terror when she picked up a knife and tried to plunge it into his dad's face.

"He thought he was going to lose his beloved dad. When Joan was disarmed, little Alan picked up the knife and plunged it into a wooden table bending it so his mother couldn't use it as a weapon again."

Joan was also convinced their apartment was bugged and that spies were listening to her every word, watching her every move.

"She would try to make her son doubt his own sanity with her hallucinations, cursing him for not seeing or hearing the imaginary folk who spoke to her constantly,” says the source.

“She lived in a fantasy world and tried to drag Alan down to the dark depths of depression and weird imagination she suffered.”

Ironically, he had to battle his own mental demons at a high point in his life, when he shot to stardom as sarcastic Dr. Hawkeye Pierce in TV’s hit sitcom M*A*S*H, which ran 11 seasons from 1972 to 1983.

“He struggled with fame and actually became unhinged for a while,” says another source.

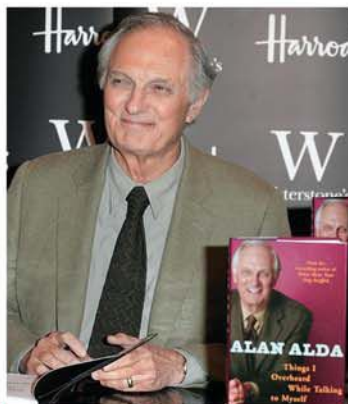

“Members of the public would grab him and it affected him so much he felt he was being hunted.

“He had night terrors where he’d see somebody in the room who wanted to strangle him! It was a hallucination but it seemed so real to him.”

He also survived deadly polio as a small child and miraculously avoided being crippled by the savage disease.

And in 2003, he nearly died from an intestinal blockage that struck while he was filming the public television show Scientific American Frontiers on a mountain top in Chile.

Now, friends want Alda to reveal how he triumphed over so many tragedies, especially his childhood with his demented mom.

“Alan grew up deeply ashamed of having a mad mother – it was a subject that was taboo with him for many years.

“Now, pals are urging him to deal with it in depth, to get it off his mind once and for all. They want him to show that you can’t let the past rule your life.”

Medical news YOU can use!

LYING TO YOUR DOCS IS DANGEROUS! 8 things they need to know

SOMETIMES patients are too embarrassed to share personal data with their doctors – and that can be a big mistake – and extremely dangerous!

“Very often patients hold back or distort important information that can be life-saving because they’re afraid of being judged,” Dr. Joe Colella, a Pittsburgh-based physician tells GLOBE.

Here are eight things you should always share with your doctor:

- All the medications you take – including vitamins and supplements – to ensure there are no dangerous interactions between them.
- Blood in the stool or urine: This can signal more serious illness, like colorectal cancer, which, if caught early, is curable.

- Poor diet and exercise habits: Don’t exaggerate how much you exercise and downplay your excess eating. Poor lifestyle habits are linked to chronic diseases such as heart disease, diabetes and more.

- Depression: Emotions can cause loss of appetite, headaches and gastrointestinal woes. Your doctor can help with therapy or short term medication.

- Stopping a medication without the doctor’s approval: That’s especially dangerous with blood pressure meds, blood thinners and antidepressants.

- A loss of interest in sex: This can signal a more serious problem such as vascular disease, an imbalance in blood chemistry and even anxiety or depression.
- Past medical history: Write down all surgeries, previous illnesses, allergies and diseases that run in the family – and carry the record with you.

- Something seen on the Internet that’s worrying: Remember medical info gathered from the web is general and may not relate to your case, notes Colella.

Why you need to walk every hour

➤ SITTING is bad news for your heart, blood sugar and longevity. But there’s good news, too – you can negate many of the harmful effects of a sedentary lifestyle just by getting up and walking for two minutes every hour! In a study of about 3,200 people, researchers found short bursts of light activity, such as walking, lowered the risk of premature death by 33 percent in folks who spend most of the day sitting down.

Green tea weakens blood pressure meds

➤ GREEN tea is about the healthiest drink around – unless you depend on the blood pressure drug nadolol. Apparently, the antioxidants in the tea that may help prevent heart disease and cancer also appear to inhibit the body from absorbing the blood pressure medication. Test subjects who drank three cups of green tea a day experienced a 76 percent drop in the blood absorption rate of the drug. Researchers conclude, “Patients treated with nadolol should avoid drinking green tea.”

VINEGAR FLUSHES OUT FAT & FIGHTS DEADLY DIABETES

VINEGAR is a natural remedy that has been around for centuries! In fact, Hippocrates, the father of medicine, used it to heal wounds long before medicine recognized its antibacterial benefits!

Dr. Ellen Kamhi, PhD, author of Weight Loss - The Alternative Medicine Guide, tells GLOBE that vinegar also contains vitamins, minerals and amino acids. Apple cider vinegar has the most health benefits, experts say.

Here's how vinegar can keep YOU healthy:

● WEIGHT LOSS. A Japanese study found that people who added a tablespoon of vinegar to 16 ounces of water daily, had a lower body mass index and lost the most weight after 12 weeks, compared to a group that drank pure water.

● DIABETES. Vinegar can lower blood sugar levels, according to another study. Two tablespoons before meals significantly reduces spikes in blood glucose and insulin that normally follow eating.

● HEART. Research published in the Journal of Agricultural and Food Chemistry reveals that apple cider vinegar significantly lowers cholesterol and triglyceride levels. It may also lower blood pressure.

● CANCER. A recent Chinese study proved vinegar decreased the risk of esophageal cancer. And Columbia University researchers also reported a compound found in apple cider vinegar slowed the growth in prostate cells.

LUCKY LADY!

JACKIE KENNEDY ONASSIS: This former First Lady brought glitz and glamour to the White House - and she'd definitely add pizzazz to the new bill.

Which woman's face should grace new $10 bill?

IT'S about time! The U.S. Treasury Department is ready to boot old fogey Alexander Hamilton off the $10 bill. It's planning to replace the founding father with a woman who's made a mark on American history.

It's the first time a female's face will grace U.S. paper currency since Martha Washington appeared on a $1 silver certificate in the 1800s.

What wonderful woman will win the coveted spot? That's up to you! The feds have taken to the Internet to ask the public to help pick the winner.

Should Beyonce hip-hop her way onto the 10-spot? Pocahontas? Harriet Tubman? Liz Taylor? Log onto the feds' new Web site, www.thenew10.treasury.gov, or tweet them at #TheNew10 and cast your vote.

But Hamilton fans are seeing red. They insist the first Secretary of the Treasury needs to stay. The feds say they may put him on the back of the bill.

The new leading lady will be announced by the end of 2015. Right, is how some would look.

SWEET! HOW TO LAND A SUGAR DADDY!

School teaches cuties TRICKS OF THE TRADE

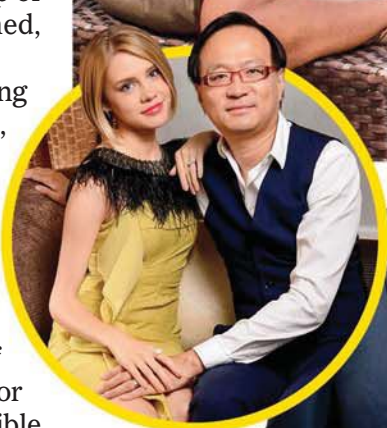

FORGET love at first sight! A new school promises to teach money-hungry women how to hook Sugar Daddies of their own – and live in the lap of luxury while being wined, dined and pampered.

In June, the world's leading Sugar Daddy dating Web site, SeekingArrangement.com, hosted its first-ever "Sugar Baby Summit" in Manhattan. More than 100 young women turned out to learn the tips and tricks to hunt, bag and get the most out of a wealthy boyfriend/benefactor – while giving as little as possible in return.

There's a class for beginner "Sugar Babies" to learn the ins and outs of the sugar lifestyle, including "no sex on the first date" because "you're going throw it all away. Keep him wanting more. That's how you're going to get more

DIGGING FOR GOLD

More than 100 women showed up for the first Sugar Baby Summit, where they learned how to hook a wealthy 'sugar daddy'

Company CEO Brandon Wade says wife Tanya was never a sugar baby, but he does pay all of her bills money," says special adviser "Kristen J."

Other experts teach prospectors to "feign interest" in their Sugar Daddies, and set them up for the kill "by dropping hints about your cash needs early on the second date." Students are also taught money management, from negotiating a higher monthly allowance to how to claim "sugar funds" on tax returns!

CASH-STRAPPED CUTIES

Guests at the Sugar Baby Summit after party wear flashy masks and prepare to put their newly minted skills to the test

Marilyn Monroe, Lauren Bacall and Betty Grable starred in How to Marry a Millionaire

It may seem like a more cut-throat take on the 1953 classic film How To Marry a Millionaire, starring Betty Grable, Lauren Bacall and Marilyn Monroe, but the relationships are a win-win for daddies and babies, the site's users insist.

Cash-strapped cuties get spoiled rotten – often with clothes, cars, cash and more – while wealthy guys, who are frequently married, pay for the privilege of a younger woman's company.

Chelsea, a former restaurant worker who didn't reveal her last name, calls hanging with her Sugar Daddies “a business” and “my job.” It pays well – $200,000 in just nine months.

But many of the women are college students looking to pay off their tuition, with New York University, Arizona State University and Kent State University topping the list of schools with Sugar Baby co-eds.

While the women are advised to be a “freak in the sheets and a lady in the streets,” it also doesn't pay for them to be bashful about going for the gold.

One student scoffed at a woman who got $1,300 from her Sugar Daddy saying “I'm not looking for a pair of shoes.” She's after a $20,000 monthly allowance and reveals “if I see a man's net worth isn't $50 to $100 million, I don't want to deal with them.”

High-rollers

And that's not pie in the sky! Two of Forbes' top 10 wealthiest men have been members of the host Web site.

The site has been making matches for nine years and boasts 4.5 million members. And despite the stereotype, a Sugar Daddy is not a “lecherous, horny old man,” says SeekingArrangement's founder and CEO Brandon Wade.

Their typical Sugar Daddy is 40 and pulls in $250,000 a year, but Wade says there are plenty of high-rollers on the site.

Wade's top tip for Babies who really want to rake in the big bucks? Hook a married Daddy. And that's not too tough – a third of the site's male members are hitched.

His organization also hosts mixers for Babies and Daddies to hook up. Women, who usually outnumber men, wear flashy masks as they mingle to hide their identities. It's all part of the mystique that frequently ends in an exchange of money.

While the typical woman who signs up looking for an arrangement is between 21 and 27, site publicist Angela Bermudo tells GLOBE a prospective Sugar Baby needn't be a 20-something gal with knockout looks. Almost any gal can find the perfect Sugar Daddy of her dreams – if she knows how.

“We have a minimum age requirement of 18, but girls don't have to be attractive, because

There's 'no shame in sugar'

just like regular guys, Sugar Daddies have different tastes,” she says. “It depends on the type of person you are.

“And not all of the girls are in their 20s. Many Sugar Daddies are looking for Sugar Babies who are in their 30s or 40s or older.”

While most Babies are quick to insist there's “no shame in sugar,” “Kristen” says it's probably not wise to call your new beau your “Sugar Daddy” in public.

“Just say he's your boyfriend who spoils you,” she advises.

And “Dakota,” 28, who landed a 50-year-old who gives her $10,000-a-month, insists it's “just about me wanting to date someone who is successful. I'm not a whore. I'm not a gold digger. I do have standards.”

But keep those checks coming!

YOUR HOROSCOPE

For the week of July 13 - July 19

by Emily Hamer-West

ARIES March 21 - April 20

Domestic duties aren't your thing, but you can't ignore them now! Line up an affordable cleaning pro or a family member to pitch in. Take a risk, Ram, for the stars are aligned for luck. Even the smallest gamble can lead to a big break! Reach out to someone from your past under Saturday's Leo moon.

TAURUS April 21 - May 21

Inspiration strikes when you least expect it - keep a notebook handy for jotting down brilliant ideas! Look for second chances, anything from romance to a recipe that didn't taste right! Single Bulls are love-linked to a Capricorn in your neighborhood. Look for someone who wears lots of red.

GEMINI May 22 - June 21

Although Mercury and Jupiter bickering put you in the mood to be alone, your family has other plans! But don't worry, Twin, the blues pass in time for an exciting invite coming your way! A Leo offers good health advice. Expect happy news about finances or a new job this weekend.

CANCER June 22 - July 22

Dive into the lifestyle change you've been thinking about, but forget about convincing others to join in while Saturn is retrograde! Vigilance is the key to safety this weekend - keep an eye on belongings and lock away valuables! Marrieds enjoy a date night beneath the stars.

LEO July 23 - August 23

Generous Jupiter is gifting Lions with opportunities galore. But with mischievous Mercury getting involved, it seems problems keep cropping up. Trust that this is a temporary slowdown. Don't ignore a health matter. See the doctor to ease your worries.

VIRGO August 24 - September 22

Chatting with someone new is fun. But before you spill out your life history, stop! It could come back to haunt you. Don't fret when cosmic clashes lead to last-minute cancellations and changes, Try frolicking instead - it is summer after all!

LIBRA September 23 - October 23

Summer's heat isn't making your temper rise, Libra. You're quite calm - and people demand to know your secret! A younger person wants you to be their mentor. This weekend, Neptune reveals a surprise than can help you land a big promotion or achieve your dream cash flow.

SCORPIO October 24 - November 22

You've always been unique so why are you trying to be something you're not, Scorpion? With Saturn in your sign, it's time to be yourself. Worry about paying bills eases with news about a bonus or pay raise for some. Others can expect a lottery win.

SAGITTARIUS November 23 - December 21

A Mars-Mercury matchup powers up your inner engine and it's full speed ahead toward your goals and special dream! You can successfully forge a financial partnership or begin a new romance midweek, Archer. But steer clear of signing agreements that involve health or appearance!

CAPRICORN December 22 - January 20

Someone tries to stir up trouble where none exists - but you know better. Stay calm and you will attract opportunity and good luck. Postpone any major financial or banking changes until next week or risk loss. A relative's needs take precedence and could lead to a sudden trip.

AQUARIUS January 21 - February 18

A minor task may take major time when the planets squabble on Monday. Someone is watching and their opinion can make or break a working relationship. Shopping for household items could lead to a contest win! Listen to your emotions. That uneasy feeling? Pay attention!

PISCES February 19 - March 20

The couch potato lifestyle catches up to everyone, and it's your turn, Fish! It's time to get moving! Make exercising fun by signing up for a class with friends or taking a daily swim. Emotions run high this weekend - let petty disagreements go! The number seven brings luck.

He filed for Chapter 11 bankruptcy in February and his $3.9 million waterside estate on Fort Lauderdale's glitzy Ocean Avenue is now on the block. It has an assessed value of $1.9 million, but is expected to fetch less.

The 6,400-square-foot home is fit for a teen heartthrob, which is Cassidy's claim to fame. Boasting six bathrooms and bedrooms, it features a private beach, docks, a resort-style pool and chef's kitchen.

As GLOBE previously reported, Cassidy won a suit with Sony over Partridge Family profits but was only awarded $157,964. Now, his heavenly home is going for a song.

SPOCK WAS ABSENTEE FATHER!

THE son of Star Trek icon Leonard Nimoy says he often felt as if his famous dad really was off in space!

That's because the actor who played Mr. Spock wasn't around much when Adam Nimoy was growing up.

"It's very difficult," reveals Adam. "He was in character a lot of the time. And he was absent a lot of the time."

Leonard was also battling booze in those days. But after he went into a 12-step rehab program, Adam says his dad's life became "all about his family."

Now, Adam is finishing a documentary, For the Love of Spock, that the two worked on together before Leonard died in February at age 83.

Says Adam, "My dad had a lot of humility."

'JOURNEY' DRUMMER BOOTED OVER ABUSE BUST

JOURNEY drummer Deen Castronovo and the band have gone their Separate Ways after the rocker's second bust for domestic violence!

Following Castronovo's June 14 arrest on charges of assault, coercion and menacing at his home in Oregon, he was kicked off the classic rock group's current tour through the U.S. and Canada.

Sources say the victim is likely his girlfriend. Castronovo, 49, was hauled off by cops on similar charges in 2012. Back then, he was sentenced to community service and ordered to attend anger management counseling.

Now, his attorney is claiming Castronovo was wrongly accused. He's expected to plead not guilty. Meanwhile, the scandal-scarred musician is urging fans Don't Stop Believin' in his version of events.

Castronovo has been replaced on the tour by 56-year-old Omar Hakim.

BENSON STAR'S HELLISH EYE SORE!

WHEELCHAIR-bound Benson star Robert Guillaume sparked fears after he was recently spotted sporting a nasty black mark under his right eye.

The frail 87-year-old Emmy winner suffered a devastating stroke in 1999, and now fans worry he's facing another serious health crisis.

'Disfigurement'

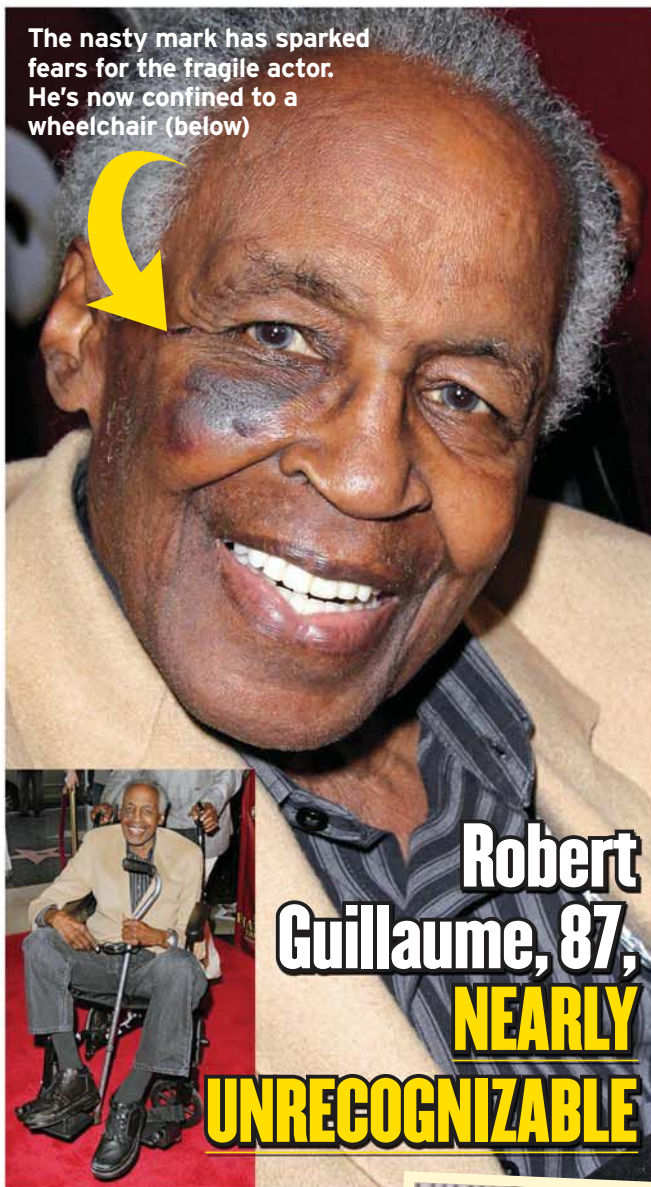

One expert suspects it's just a benign growth on his cheek.

"Sometimes as we age, we can develop lumps and bumps that are harmless, but to remove them would cause more disfigurement," notes plastic surgeon Dr. Jeffrey Spiegel.

Others believe it may be a horrific bruise caused by blood-thinning drugs prescribed after the stroke, which left him partially paralyzed.

"He might have sus-

The nasty mark has sparked fears for the fragile actor. He's now confined to a wheelchair (below)

tained a recent fall or similar trauma to this area," cosmetic surgeon Dr. Lyle M. Back tells GLOBE. "He may also be on special anticoagulant medication that can lead to such bruising, even with relatively minor bumps on the skin."

Guillaume, who became a household name as hot-tempered butler Benson DuBois in Soap and later on Benson, suffered the debilitating stroke while starring in the TV comedy Sports Night.

After the stroke, he soldiered on and was able to bounce back. He even returned to his role in Sports Night with his illness written into the show. And he appeared in numerous roles for TV, film and video games in the following years.

Some wonder whether the medical crisis has come back to haunt the beloved actor. Plastic surgeon Dr. Anthony Youn, who, like the other experts in this article, has not treated Guillaume, says it "looks like terrible bruising" but "should go away in a couple of weeks."

MSNBC STAFFERS HATE LIAR WILLIAMS

ONE of Brian Williams' reports on his short-lived Rock Center show is coming back to bite him in the butt - and now he's hated by co-workers!

On a two-part 2012 broadcast, Williams blasted "corrosive" honchos at CNN, FOX News and MSNBC. But now the disgraced newsman has been shifted to MSNBC after being canned from his anchor chair at NBC Nightly News for lying about his war exploits.

"The rank and file at MSNBC were furious at Brian," says a source.

They hated it so much, continues the source, months later at a Christmas party some staffers chanted "F Brian Williams!"

As GLOBE reported, Williams, 56, is already angling to snatch his old job back from his replacement, Lester Holt.

"Brian will be gunning for his rival," says an insider. "But Lester won't back down." And Williams better watch his back at the cable network.

Guillaume starred on Soap, Benson and Sports Night (left to right), during which he had a stroke

American legends as you've NEVER SEEN THEM BEFORE

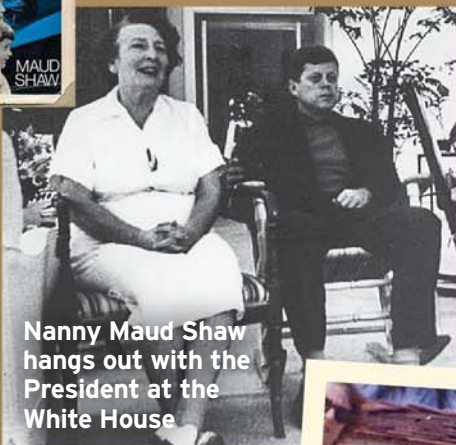

IN a recently unearthed cache of intimate photos, the Kennedys almost look like a normal American family instead of a political dynasty.

The never-before-seen snapshots include little Caroline and John-John playing, a family day at the beach, Caroline riding a pony as Jackie leads it and a casually dressed President John F. Kennedy.

The 79 pictures belonged to the Kennedys' late nanny, Maud Shaw, who was hired by the family following Caroline's birth in 1957. Shaw took care of Caroline and little brother John until after JFK's assassination in 1963.

Shaw died in 1988. Now, her family is auctioning off Kennedy memorabilia she'd amassed. Along with the photos, a maternity dress worn by First Lady Jackie and a signed copy of Shaw's memoir, White House Nanny: My Seven Momentous Years with Caroline and John Kennedy Jr., also hit the block.

'PREDATOR' HANSEN IN 'KILLER' COMEBACK

SHAMED newsman Chris Hansen is making a comeback two years after being dumped by NBC over a sensational sex scandal.

The former star of Dateline NBC's To Catch a Predator - the hidden camera sting operation show that exposed child sex offenders - will return later this year as the host of Killer Instinct with Chris Hansen on the Investigation Discovery network.

Shocked the nation

The 10-episode series takes an in-depth look at horrific murders that have shocked the nation and changed dozens of lives forever.

"This is reporting the way I like it - in the field, gritty and aggressive," Hansen says. "We'll explore captivating cases with interviews from people who've never spoken before."

In 2013, it was revealed that Hansen, 55, a married father of two, had been having a four-month affair with Kristyn Caddell, a Florida TV reporter 20 years his junior.

Caddell had claimed that Hansen led her to believe that he planned to leave his wife for her, and she released pictures of them together, with

'Other woman' Kristyn Caddell

Chris Hansen is happy to have a second chance with his new show one of them showing the couple kissing passionately on the street.

The scandal spelled the end of his run on "Predator," but now he's got another shot with his new series.

"I think TV and America love second acts," says Neal Shapiro, former president of NBC News. "There's a long history of people reinventing themselves."

TV FACT

The Mindy Project star, Mindy Kaling, loves filming sex scenes and says actors are lying when they say they hate it. "Simulating sex can be pretty damn enjoyable as well," she says.

JESSE STONE RETURNS

SUPER sleuth Jesse Stone is back in action for a ninth TV movie after a three-year break, but this time on a new network.

Tom Selleck, 70, returns as the small town sheriff in Jesse Stone: Lost in Paradise on the Hallmark Channel later this year. The previous eight movies aired on CBS.

"Just about anywhere I go, people come up to me and ask 'When can I see the next Jesse Stone?' " says

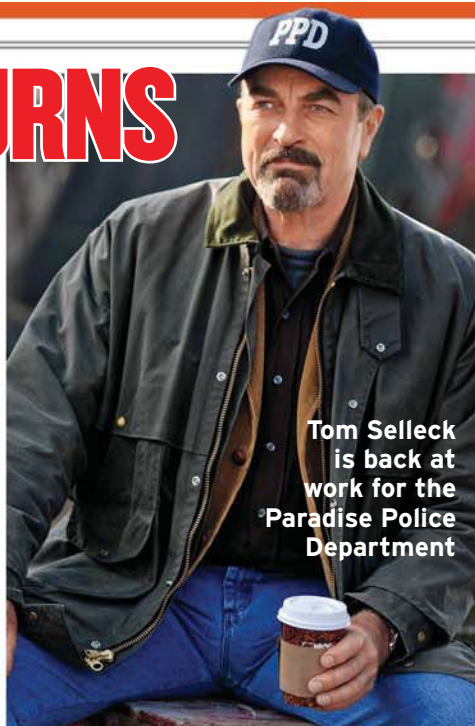

Selleck, who plays New York police chief Frank Reagan on CBS' Blue Bloods. "Thanks to this new deal I can happily say it's coming soon."

Hallmark is also set to air a new crime movie franchise starring Biggest Loser host Alison Sweeney.

Chris Pratt is married to Mom's Anna Faris

36-year-old Parks and Recreation actor, who's married to Mom beauty, Anna Faris.

And eager "Five-O" producer Peter Lenkov says he's already working on a story line to include Pratt.

"We have a number of roles in mind, such as a former SEAL buddy of McGarrett's recruited to be the newest member of Five-O, or a surf instructor-turned-drug lord," Lenkov says. "We'd love to have Chris become a part of our Ohana (family)."

'WIFE' STAR'S LOVE POTION

DASHING Josh Charles is taking on a sweet-smelling role a year after his Will Gardner character was killed off on the hit CBS legal drama, The Good Wife.

The 43-year-old actor will turn up on the third season of Showtime's Masters of Sex as Daniel Logan, a perfume tycoon who's creating an aphrodisiac scent to help Americans' sex lives.

While conjuring up the perfect love potion, Logan turns to human sexuality pioneers, William Masters (Michael Sheen) and Virginia Johnson (Lizzy Caplan), for their expertise.

Charles is also filming the movie Fun House with 30 Rock's Tina Fey and Fargo's Billy Bob Thornton, about a female journalist covering the wars in Afghanistan and Pakistan.

LOVESTRUCK DARYL'S GOT A LOTTA GUTS!

LOOKS like screen beauty Daryl Hannah's got a bellyful of love.

The 54-year-old Splash mermaid, a former galpal of the late John F. Kennedy Jr., just couldn't keep her hands off Old Man singer Neil Young, 69, as they caught some air on their hotel balcony during a romantic getaway to Portofino, Italy.

It's obvious what she sees in the rock icon: He's got a Heart of Gold!

GERE WE GO AGAIN!

RICHARD GERE isn't getting any younger - but his girlfriends are!

The 65-year-old actor, who once starred in the movie American Gigolo, was sucking face in public with a blonde beauty young enough to be his daughter in GLOBE photos published last week.

And he's now at it again! This time, it's Spanish socialite Alejandra Silva, 32. The two got touchy-feely on a beach in Sicily.

As GLOBE reported last week, Gere was photographed smooching a pretty blonde, who resembled his 32-year-old Arbitrage co-star Brit Marling, at an eatery in Taormina, Italy, on June 16.

Silva and Gere have a lot in common - marriage-wise. While the movie star is estranged from his wife Cary Lowell, Silva is reportedly estranged from her hubby, American mining tycoon heir Govind Friedland, dad of her young son Albert.

Gere and Lowell, parents of son Homer, 15, split in 2013 but are still battling in court over an estimated $250 million fortune.

Meanwhile, a friend of Silva's says the lovebirds were trying to keep their romance hidden from the public, "but all of their friends know."

A&E'S hit reality show Storage Wars lived up to its name when a vicious brawl between three fast-talking cast members exploded on the set.

The fight ignited after auctioneer Dan Dotson missed a bid on the June 19 episode and producers asked bidder Dave Hester to correct him.

Dan ignored him. And when Dave tried again, Dan blew up, screaming, "* you David! I'm going to kill you."

Hell broke loose

Then all hell broke loose, say sources.

Dave reportedly punched Dan in the face. Dan "raked Dave's eye."

Then Dan's wife, Laura, leaped in, jumping on Dave's back - and was tossed through the air!

After the brawl, Laura launched into a potty-mouthed

STORAGE WARS STARS EXPLODE IN FISTFIGHT!

rant against Hester, raging "You're son of a *h r. You like hitting a woman? You like knocking me down on the n ground? You like throwing me down?"

When someone tried to calm her, she bellowed, "I'm not done" and continued hurling profanities at Hester.

Fortunately, there were no serious injuries. Hester reportedly claimed Laura scratched him and left to get a tetanus shot at a hospital ER.

Dan later sent a Twitter message, saying, "We're sorry Storage War fans! Violence is never the answer. We were attacked & did what anyone would do."

The brawl forced producers to shut down filming "until further notice," says a source.

TOP COP DEMANDS NEW COBAIN DEATH PROBE!

A FORMER police chief is calling for a new probe into the death of Kurt Cobain following explosive claims the grunge rocker was MURDERED – and his wife Courtney Love had a mega-bucks motive to see him in his grave.

In the new documentary Soaked in Bleach, retired Seattle Police Chief Norm Stamper, who ran the department when Cobain died in 1994, admits his investigators made mistakes on the case, which was officially ruled a suicide!

He now contends police should have studied “patterns involved in the behavior of key individuals who had a motive to see Kurt Cobain dead” – and if he were still in charge “I would reopen this investigation.”

The Nirvana lead singer, 27, was found dead in his Lake Washington home on April 8, 1994. Seattle cops determined the death was the result of

Kurt with wife Courtney Love and daughter Frances Bean

Norm Stamper

Rocker's suicide COULD HAVE BEEN STAGED

a self-inflicted gunshot wound.

But the documentary seems to suggest he may have been injected with a “lethal dose of heroin” and the death scene could’ve been staged to look like a suicide so his wife could cash in.

But Hole singer Love, 50, denies any involvement in her husband’s death. She insists the murder theory has been “repeatedly debunked...and cannot have any credibility.”

FLASHBACK

TIPPI'S BIRDY BUDDY!

STUNNING model TIPPI HEDREN had no fear of birds when this photo was snapped in 1954. Nine years later, she'd play a terrified beauty targeted by the feathered fiends in Alfred Hitchcock's horror classic The Birds. After starring in Hitch's psychological thriller Marnie in 1964, she ran a-fowl of the director, ending their professional relationship. Now age 85, the mom of actress MELANIE GRIFFITH and grandma of Fifty Shades of Grey beauty DAKOTA JOHNSON was last seen in 2013's Return to Babylon.
